“B” Company, 9th Engineer Battalion
United States Marine Corps

Citation

During the period 25 March to 9 April 1968, B Company 9th Engineer Battalion, USMC performed essential combat support missions in support of the 101st Airborne Division in the Republic of Viet Nam. The tasks it accomplished included construction of the Division’s Tactical Operations Center and command facilities, installation of a power distribution system for the Division headquarters area, installation of the Camp Eagle perimeter defensive wire and barrier system, establishment of an emergency water supply point, firebase and road construction in the Division’s Area of Operations, and daily mine clearing operations along Division roads.

The professional competence, exemplary conduct, and spirit of cooperation displayed by the men of B Company, even when exposed to hostile fire, were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon the United States Marine Corps.
